Access Control	Organizations must limit information system access to authorized users, processes acting on behalf of authorized users, or devices (including other information systems) and to the types of transactions and functions that authorized users are permitted to exercise.	17	10
Audit And Accountability	Organizations must: (i) create, protect, and retain information system audit records to the extent needed to enable the monitoring, analysis, investigation, and reporting of unlawful, unauthorized, or inappropriate information system activity; and (ii) ensure that the actions of individual information system users can be uniquely traced to those users so they can be held accountable for their actions.	0	0
Configuration Management	Organizations must: (i) establish and maintain baseline configurations and inventories of organizational information systems (including hardware, software, firmware, and documentation) throughout the respective system development life cycles; and (ii) establish and enforce security configuration settings for information technology products employed in organizational information systems.	1	1
Identification And Authentication	Organizations must identify information system users, processes acting on behalf of users, or devices and authenticate (or verify) the identities of those users, processes, or devices, as a prerequisite to allowing access to organizational information systems.	3	3

Category	Description	Issues Found	Best Fix Locations
M1-Improper Platform Usage	This category covers misuse of a platform feature or failure to use platform security controls. It might include Android intents, platform permissions, misuse of TouchID, the Keychain, or some other security control that is part of the mobile operating system. There are several ways that mobile apps can experience this risk.	0	0
M2-Insecure Data Storage	This category covers insecure data storage and unintended data leakage.	0	0
M3-Insecure Communication	This category covers poor handshaking, incorrect SSL versions, weak negotiation, cleartext communication of sensitive assets, etc.	0	0
M4-Insecure Authentication	This category captures notions of authenticating the end user or bad session management. This can include: -Failing to identify the user at all when that should be required -Failure to maintain the user's identity when it is required -Weaknesses in session management	0	0
M5-Insufficient Cryptography	The code applies cryptography to a sensitive information asset. However, the cryptography is insufficient in some way. Note that anything and everything related to TLS or SSL goes in M3. Also, if the app fails to use cryptography at all when it should, that probably belongs in M2. This category is for issues where cryptography was attempted, but it wasnt done correctly.	0	0
M6-Insecure Authorization	This is a category to capture any failures in authorization (e.g., authorization decisions in the client side, forced browsing, etc.). It is distinct from authentication issues (e.g., device enrolment, user identification, etc.). If the app does not authenticate users at all in a situation where it should (e.g., granting anonymous access to some resource or service when authenticated and authorized access is required), then that is an authentication failure not an authorization failure.	0	0
M7-Client Code Quality	This category is the catch-all for code-level implementation problems in the mobile client. That's distinct from server-side coding mistakes. This would capture things like buffer overflows, format string vulnerabilities, and various other code-level mistakes where the solution is to rewrite some code that's running on the mobile device.	0	0
M8-Code Tampering	This category covers binary patching, local resource modification, method hooking, method swizzling, and dynamic memory modification. Once the application is delivered to the mobile device, the code and data resources are resident there. An attacker can either directly modify the code, change the contents of memory dynamically, change or replace the system APIs that the	0	0 application uses, or modify the application's data and resources. This can provide the attacker a direct method of subverting the intended use of the software for personal or monetary gain.

M9-Reverse Engineering	This category includes analysis of the final core binary to determine its source code, libraries, algorithms, and other assets. Software such as IDA Pro, Hopper, otool, and other binary inspection tools give the attacker insight into the inner workings of the application. This may be used to exploit other nascent vulnerabilities in the application, as well as revealing information about back end servers, cryptographic constants and ciphers, and intellectual property.	0	0
M10-Extraneous Functionality	Often, developers include hidden backdoor functionality or other internal development security controls that are not intended to be released into a production environment. For example, a developer may accidentally include a password as a comment in a hybrid app. Another example includes disabling of 2-factor authentication during testing.	0	0

The method async embeds untrusted data in generated output with write, at line 15 of x5m-web-main/apps/perekrestok_web/server/controllers/FeedGenerator/feeds/edadeal/getLargeEdadealFeed.ts. This untrusted data is embedded into the output without proper sanitization or encoding, enabling an attacker to inject malicious code into the generated web-page.
The attacker would be able to alter the returned web page by saving malicious data in a data-store ahead of time. The attacker's modified data is then read from the database by the async method with find, at line 15 of x5m-web-main/apps/perekrestok_web/server/controllers/FeedGenerator/feeds/edadeal/getLargeEdadealF eed.ts. This untrusted data then flows through the code straight to the output web page, without sanitization.

This can enable a Stored Cross-Site Scripting (XSS) attack.

The method useEffect embeds untrusted data in generated output with handleStorageChange, at line 44 of x5m-web-main/apps/mobile5ka/src/hooks/useLocalStorageEffect.ts. This untrusted data is embedded into the output without proper sanitization or encoding, enabling an attacker to inject malicious code into the generated web-page.
The attacker can inject the malicious payload into the victim client, via client-side storage mechanism getItem. This is read by the client in the deps.map method, at line 19 of x5m-web-main/apps/mobile5ka/src/hooks/useLocalStorageEffect.ts. The client evaluates this code, and executes it.

The method app.get embeds untrusted data in generated output with send, at line 97 of x5m-web-main/apps/perekrestok_web/server/index.tsx. This untrusted data is embedded into the output without proper sanitization or encoding, enabling an attacker to inject malicious code into the generated web-page.
The attacker would be able to alter the returned web page by simply providing modified data in the user input ip, which is read by the app.get method at line 97 of x5m-web-main/apps/perekrestok_web/server/index.tsx. This input then flows through the code straight to the output web page, without sanitization.
This can enable a Reflected Cross-Site Scripting (XSS) attack.

Client DOM Stored Code Injection

Risk

What might happen

A successful XSS exploit would allow an attacker to rewrite web pages and insert malicious scripts which would alter the intended output. This could include HTML fragments, CSS styling rules, arbitrary JavaScript, or references to third party code. An attacker could use this to steal users' passwords, collect personal data such as credit card details, provide false information, or run malware. From the victim's point of view, this is performed by the genuine website, and the victim would blame the site for incurred damage.

An additional risk with DOM XSS is that, unlike reflected or stored XSS, tainted values do not have to go through the server. Since the server is not involved in sanitization of these inputs, server-side validation is not likely to not be aware XSS attacks have been occurring, and any server-side security solutions, such as a WAF, are likely to be ineffective in DOM XSS mitigation.

The attacker may be able to inject his malicious payload into the victim client's storage, such as cookies, local storage, or other client-side storage functionality. This would enable the attacker to gain control of the user's experience with the client application, hijacking the client to alter the displayed web pages, mount phishing attacks, and execute arbitrary scripts.

Cause

How does it happen

The application creates web pages that include untrusted data, whether from user input, the application's database, or from other external sources. The untrusted data is embedded directly in the page's HTML, causing the browser to display it as part of the web page. If the input includes HTML fragments or JavaScript, these are displayed too, and the user cannot tell that this is not the intended page. The vulnerability is the result of directly embedding arbitrary data without first encoding it in a format that would prevent the browser from treating it like HTML or code instead of plain text.

When a DOM XSS occurs, it is the client-side code itself that manipulates the local web-page's DOM, extracting data from some client-based storage, introducing potentially malicious content.
In this case, the untrusted input is read by the client, and evaluated as client code.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it
- Fully encode all dynamic data, regardless of source, before embedding it in output.
- Encoding should be context-sensitive. For example:
    - HTML encoding for HTML content
    - HTML Attribute encoding for data output to attribute values
    - JavaScript encoding for server-generated JavaScript
- It is recommended to use the platform-provided encoding functionality, or known security libraries for encoding output.
- Implement a Content Security Policy (CSP) with explicit whitelists for the application's resources only.
- As an extra layer of protection, validate all untrusted data, regardless of source (note this is not a replacement for encoding). Validation should be based on a whitelist: accept only data fitting a specified structure, rather than reject bad patterns. Check for:
    - Data type
    - Size
    - Range
    - Format
    - Expected values
- In the `Content-Type` HTTP response header, explicitly define character encoding (charset) for the entire page.
- Set the `HTTPOnly` flag on the session cookie for "Defense in Depth", to prevent any successful XSS exploits from stealing the cookie.
- On the client-side, do not use any form of dynamic code evaluation with any untrusted data. Dynamic evaluation is only allowed with hard-coded commands.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Dynamic evaluation of local storage

eval(localStorage.getItem("expression"));

Dynamically Invoking a Safe Function

window.setTimeout(hardcodedFunction(), 1000);
```

Source Code Examples

JavaScript

DOM XSS in img Attribute

var url = new URL(window.location.href);
var imgsrc = url.searchParams.get("imageLocation");
document.write('<img id="myImage" src=' + imgsrc +' ></img>'); // The payload
"imageLocation=1 onerror=alert(1)" will result in an alert prompt, demonstrating XSS

Use Javascript to Construct DOM Elements, Rather Than Manually Concatenating Values

var url = new URL(window.location.href);
var imgsrc = url.searchParams.get("imageLocation");
var myImg = document.createElement("IMG");
myImg.src = imgsrc;
someDiv.append(myImg);
```

DOM XSS When Using "eval()" to Parse JSON in Javascript

var url = new URL(window.location.href);
var val = url.searchParams.get("val");
var json = `[{"val": "${val}"}]`;
var obj = eval(json); // The payload json=","a":alert(1),"b":" will result in an alert
prompt, demonstrating XSS

Replacing "eval()" with "JSON.parse()" to Avoid XSS

var url = new URL(window.location.href);
var val = url.searchParams.get("val");
var json = `[{"val": "${val}"}]`;
var obj =  JSON.parse(json); // JSON.parse() does not eval JS code
```

DOM XSS in iFrame "src" Attribute

var url = new URL(window.location.href);
var iframeLocation = url.searchParams.get("iframeLocation");
document.getElementById("myFrame").src = iframeLocation; // The payload "iframeLocation=javascript:alert(1)" will result in an alert prompt, demonstrating XSS. This is also vulnerable to open redirection.

Prepending iFrame "src" Attribute to Prevent Malicious URI Schemes

var url = new URL(window.location.href);
var iframeLocation = url.searchParams.get("iframeLocation");
document.getElementById("myFrame").src = "/example/"+iframeLocation; // Prepending
iframeLocation prevents changing the URI scheme to "javascript:", mitigating XSS

Risk

What might happen

A successful XSS exploit would allow an attacker to rewrite web pages and insert malicious scripts which would alter the intended output. This could include HTML fragments, CSS styling rules, arbitrary JavaScript, or references to third party code. An attacker could use this to steal users' passwords, collect personal data such as credit card details, provide false information, or run malware. From the victim's point of view, this is performed by the genuine website, and the victim would blame the site for incurred damage.

An attacker could use legitimate access to the application to submit modified data to the application's data-store. This would then be used to construct the returned web page, triggering the attack.

Cause

How does it happen

The application creates web pages that include untrusted data, whether from user input, the application's database, or from other external sources. The untrusted data is embedded directly in the page's HTML, causing the browser to display it as part of the web page. If the input includes HTML fragments or JavaScript, these are displayed too, and the user cannot tell that this is not the intended page. The vulnerability is the result of directly embedding arbitrary data without first encoding it in a format that would prevent the browser from treating it like HTML or code instead of plain text.

In order to exploit this vulnerability, an attacker would load the malicious payload into the data-store, typically via regular forms on other web pages. Afterwards, the application reads this data from the data-store, and embeds it within the web page as displayed for another user.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

- Fully encode all dynamic data, regardless of source, before embedding it in output.
- Encoding should be context-sensitive. For example:
    - HTML encoding for HTML content
    - HTML Attribute encoding for data output to attribute values
    - JavaScript encoding for server-generated JavaScript
- It is recommended to use the platform-provided encoding functionality, or known security libraries for encoding output.

- In the `Content-Type` HTTP response header, explicitly define character encoding (charset) for the entire page.
- Set the `HTTPOnly` flag on the session cookie for "Defense in Depth", to prevent any successful XSS exploits from stealing the cookie.

        else

Reflected XSS

Risk

What might happen

A successful XSS exploit would allow an attacker to rewrite web pages and insert malicious scripts which would alter the intended output. This could include HTML fragments, CSS styling rules, arbitrary JavaScript, or references to third party code. An attacker could use this to steal users' passwords, collect personal data such as credit card details, provide false information, or run malware. From the victim's point of view, this is performed by the genuine website, and the victim would blame the site for incurred damage.

The attacker could use social engineering to cause the user to send the website modified input, which will be returned in the requested web page.

Cause

How does it happen

The application creates web pages that include untrusted data, whether from user input, the application's database, or from other external sources. The untrusted data is embedded directly in the page's HTML, causing the browser to display it as part of the web page. If the input includes HTML fragments or JavaScript, these are displayed too, and the user cannot tell that this is not the intended page. The vulnerability is the result of directly embedding arbitrary data without first encoding it in a format that would prevent the browser from treating it like HTML or code instead of plain text.

Note that an attacker can exploit this vulnerability either by modifying the URL, or by submitting malicious data in the user input or other request fields.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

- Fully encode all dynamic data, regardless of source, before embedding it in output.
- Encoding should be context-sensitive. For example:
    - HTML encoding for HTML content
    - HTML Attribute encoding for data output to attribute values

    res.send("<h1>Welcome, " + name + "!</h1>"); // Setting the payload name=<script>alert(1)</script> will result in an alert prompt in browsers without XSS protection, such as Firefox, demonstrating XSS

Using a Template Engine, Such as Handlebars, to Write User Input to An HTML Context, Where User Input is Encoded by The Template Engine

// In Web-Server code app.get(welcomeUrl, function(req, res) {

    res.render('home', {name: name});
});

// In 'home' View code

Client HTML5 Store Sensitive data In Web Storage

Risk

What might happen

An attacker that has access to a user's client device, will be able to retrieve stored information, such as user's sensitive personal data (PII) from the client storage. Use of this storage will also increase exposure of its content to theft via other means, such as cross-site scripting (XSS). This would be detrimental to the user and harm their privacy, and could cause damage to reputation, financial loss, and even lead to identity theft.

Cause

How does it happen

The application stores data, which may contain PII (Personally Identifiable Information), on the client browser or device. The application uses insecure forms of storage, which do not inherently provide any protection from unauthorized access. This data is not encrypted or sanitized before being stored, thus a malicious entity with access to the device or browser could easily retrieve the user's data.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

- Avoid storing sensitive data, such as PII, on unprotected clients.
- If PII or other sensitive data must be stored on the client, ensure it is encrypted or otherwise protected.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
User Data Stored in Local Storage

function storeUserData() {
     var accountId = getUserAccount();
     localStorage.setItem('accountId', accountId);
}

User Data in Globals instead of Persistent Storage

var globalAccountId;

function storeUserData() {
     var accountId = getUserAccount();
     globalAccountId = accountId; // Data is stored in DOM, but not persistently
}

Source Code Examples

JavaScript

Stored DOM XSS in img Attribute

var imgsrc = localStorage.get("imgsrc");
document.write('<img id="myImage" src=' + imgsrc +' ></img>'); // // If the local storage value "imgsrc" is set to "1 onerror=alert(1)" will result in an alert prompt, demonstrating

Use Javascript to Construct DOM Elements, Rather Than Manually Concatenating Values

var imgsrc = localStorage.get("imgsrc");
var myImg = document.createElement("IMG");
myImg.src = imgsrc;
someDiv.append(myImg);
```

Stored DOM XSS When Using "eval()" to Parse JSON in Javascript

var val = localStorage.get("val");
var json = `[{"val": "${val}"}]`;
var obj = eval(json); // If the local storage value "val" is set to ","a":alert(1),"b":" will result in an alert prompt, demonstrating XSS

Replacing "eval()" with "JSON.parse()" to Avoid XSS

var val = localStorage.get("val");
var json = `[{"val": "${val}"}]`;
var obj =  JSON.parse(json); // JSON.parse() does not eval JS code
```

DOM XSS in iFrame "src" Attribute

var iframeLocation = localStorage.get("iframeLocation");
document.getElementById("myFrame").src = iframeLocation; // If the local storage value
"iframeLocation" is set to "javascript:alert(1)" will result in an alert prompt, demonstrating XSS. This is also vulnerable to open redirection.

Prepending iFrame "src" Attribute to Prevent Malicious URI Schemes

var iframeLocation = localStorage.get("iframeLocation");
document.getElementById("myFrame").src = "/example/"+iframeLocation; // Prepending

Client ReDoS From Regex Injection

Risk

What might happen

ReDoS (regular expression denial of service) can use complex patterns to cause a denial of service (DoS). With certain patterns, processing time can grow exponentially in relation to input size. An attacker can use these regular expressions to cause the application to spend a significant amount of computation time processing a regular expression over a data-set, causing the application to hang.

Cause

How does it happen

ReDoS (regular expression denial of service) is an algorithmic complexity attack, that exploits exponential time worst case complexity. In particular, certain regex patterns - either explicitly coded in the application, or accepted from user input and used for searching text - can cause extreme levels of processing for some input texts. For example, `(a+)+` would hang on an input of a long string of "aaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaa!"

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

- Do not use input for constructing a regular expression.
- Ensure all hardcoded regexes are not vulnerable to ReDoS, specifically ensuring worst case complexity does not cause the application to hang.
- Strive to avoid unnecessarily complex expressions; craft regular expressions that are as simple as possible.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Using User Input As Regex Pattern

```javascript var urlParams = new URLSearchParams(location.search);
var username = urlParams.get('username');
var password = urlParams.get('password');

var pattern = new RegExp(username);
var res = pattern.test(password);

if (res) {
    // Reject case where username is part of password

Using User Input With String's includes()

```javascript var urlParams = new URLSearchParams(location.search);
var username = urlParams.get('username');
var password = urlParams.get('password');

if (password.includes(username)) {
    // Reject case where username is part of password
```

```
}

Missing HSTS Header
Risk
What might happen
Failure to set an HSTS header and provide it with a reasonable "max-age" value of at least one year may leave users vulnerable to Man-in-the-Middle attacks.

Cause
How does it happen
Many users browse to websites by simply typing the domain name into the address bar, without the protocol prefix. The browser will automatically assume that the user's intended protocol is HTTP, instead of the encrypted HTTPS protocol.
When this initial request is made, an attacker can perform a Man-in-the-Middle attack and manipulate it to redirect users to a malicious web-site of the attacker's choosing. To protect the user from such an occurence, the HTTP Strict Transport Security (HSTS) header instructs the user's browser to disallow use of an unsecure HTTP connection to the the domain associated with the HSTS header.
Once a browser that supports the HSTS feature has visited a web-site and the header was set, it will no longer allow communicating with the domain over an HTTP connection.
Once an HSTS header was issued for a specific website, the browser is also instructed to prevent users from manually overriding and accepting an untrusted SSL certificate for as long as the "max-age" value still applies. The recommended "max-age" value is for at least one year in seconds, or 31536000.

General Recommendations
How to avoid it
- Before setting the HSTS header - consider the implications it may have:
  - Forcing HTTPS will prevent any future use of HTTP, which could hinder some testing
  - Disabling HSTS is not trivial, as once it is disabled on the site, it must also be disabled on the browser
- Set the HSTS header either explicitly within application code, or using web-server configurations.
- Ensure the "max-age" value for HSTS headers is set to 31536000 to ensure HSTS is strictly enforced for at least one year.
- Include the "includeSubDomains" to maximize HSTS coverage, and ensure HSTS is enforced on all sub-domains under the current domain
  - Note that this may prevent secure browser access to any sub-domains that utilize HTTP; however, use of HTTP is very severe and highly discouraged, even for websites that do not contain any sensitive information, as their contents can still be tampered via Man-in-the-Middle attacks to phish users under the HTTP domain.
- Once HSTS has been enforced, submit the web-application's address to an HSTS preload list - this will ensure that, even if a client is accessing the web-application for the first time (implying HSTS has not yet been set by the web-application), a browser that respects the HSTS preload list would still treat the web-application as if it had already issued an HSTS header. Note that this requires the server to have a trusted SSL certificate, and issue an HSTS header with a maxAge of 1 year (31536000)
- Note that this query is designed to return one result per application. This means that if more than one vulnerable response without an HSTS header is identified, only the first identified instance of this issue will be highlighted as a result. If a misconfigured instance of HSTS is identified (has a short lifespan, or is missing the "includeSubDomains" flag), that result will be flagged. Since HSTS is required to be enforced across the entire application to be considered a secure deployment of HSTS functionality, fixing this issue only where the query highlights this result is likely to produce subsequent results in other sections of the application; therefore, when adding this header via code, ensure it is uniformly deployed across the entire application. If this header is added via configuration, ensure that this configuration applies to the entire application.
- Note that misconfigured HSTS headers that do not contain the recommended max-age value of at least one year or the "includeSubDomains" flag will still return a result for a missing HSTS header.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Using Helmet with Express

```javascript var express = require('express') var helmet = require('helmet') // Helmet includes HSTS, defined to one year and with "includeSubDomains", as a built-in header

var app = express()
app.use(helmet())
```

Using Explicit HSTS Package - Built into Helmet, So Either 'HSTS' or 'Helmet' Can Be Used

```javascript var hsts = require('hsts') app.use(hsts({

  maxAge: 31536000,
  includeSubDomains: true // Also enabled by default
}))
```

Explicitly Setting HSTS Header in Code

```javascript res.setHeader("Strict-Transport-Security", "max-age=31536000; includeSubDomains");
```

Privacy Violation

Risk

What might happen

A user's personal information could be stolen by a malicious programmer, or an attacker that intercepts the data.

Cause

How does it happen

The application sends user information, such as passwords, account information, or credit card numbers, outside the application, such as writing it to a local text or log file or sending it to an external web service.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

1. Personal data should be removed before writing to logs or other files.
2. Review the need and justification of sending personal data to remote web services.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Logging Username and Password

```javascript
app.get(welcomeUrl, function(req, res) {
    log(req.params.username, req.params.password);
    res.render('home', {username: req.params.username});
});
```

Logging Username

```javascript app.get(welcomeUrl, function(req, res) {
    log(req.params.username);
    res.render('home', {username: req.params.username});
});
```

SSL Verification Bypass

Risk

What might happen

If the SSL/TLS library is configured to disable verification of the certificate's properties, such as trust chain, hostname, expiry and more - it is possible to cause the application to utilize an unvalidated certificate. This may allow an attacker to intercept the client requests, provide their own forged server certificate, and perform an active Man-in-the-Middle attacks - even over HTTPS. Thus an attacker would have complete access to the content of requests and responses, reading any secret information and tampering any sensitive data, including user credentials.

Cause

How does it happen

The application utilizes HTTPS, but is explicitly configured to disable verification of certificate authenticity. If the certificate signer is not verified all the way up to a trusted certificate authority, it is possible to issue a bogus certificate, and have it be accepted by the application. Since the application does not enforce the signing certificate is already configured in the system's trusted root certificate store, it is possible to simply use a self-signed certificate, with any user- or server-name, and the application will trust it.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

Generic Guidance:

- Properly implement all checks necessary to ensure the identity of entities involved in encrypted communications.
- Properly configure all parameters of HTTPS.
- Never disable certificate verification.
- Explicitly enforce verification, setting "rejectUnauthorized" to True.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Explicitly Disabling Certificate Verification

```javascript var https = require('https');

var options = {
  hostname: 'domain.com',
  port: 443,
  path: '/',
  method: 'GET',
  rejectUnauthorized: false;
options.agent = new https.Agent(options);

var req = https.request(options, function(res) { res.on('data', function(d) {
    handleRequest(d);
  });
});
req.end();
```

Always Enable Certificate Verification

```javascript var https = require('https');

var options = {
  hostname: 'domain.com',
  port: 443,
  path: '/',
  method: 'GET',
  rejectUnauthorized: true;
  key: fs.readFileSync('test/fixtures/keys/agent2-key.pem'), cert: fs.readFileSync('test/fixtures/keys/agent2-cert.pem')
options.agent = new https.Agent(options);

var req = https.request(options, function(res) {
  res.on('data', function(d) {
    handleRequest(d);
  });
```

Client DOM Open Redirect

Risk

What might happen

An attacker could use social engineering to get a victim to click a link to the application, so that the user will be immediately redirected to another site of the attacker's choice. An attacker can then craft a destination website to fool the victim; for example - they may craft a phishing website with an identical looking UI as the previous website's login page, and with a similar looking URL, convincing the user to submit their access credentials in the attacker's website. Another example would be a phishing website with an identical UI as that of a popular payment service, convincing the user to submit their payment information.

Cause

How does it happen

The application redirects the user's browser to a URL provided by a tainted input, without first ensuring that URL leads to a trusted destination, and without warning users that they are being redirected outside of the current site. An attacker could use social engineering to get a victim to click a link to the application with a parameter defining another site to which the application will redirect the user's browser. Since the user may not be aware of the redirection, they may be under the misconception that the website they are currently browsing can be trusted.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

1. Ideally, do not allow arbitrary URLs for redirection. Instead, create a mapping from user-provided parameter values to legitimate URLs.
2. If it is necessary to allow arbitrary URLs:
    o For URLs inside the application site, first filter and encode the user-provided parameter, and then either:
        ▪ Create a white-list of allowed URLs inside the application
        ▪ Use variables as a relative URL as an absolute one, by prefixing it with the application site domain - this will ensure all redirection will occur inside the domain
    o For URLs outside the application (if necessary), either:
        ▪ White-list redirection to allowed external domains by first filtering URLs with trusted prefixes. Prefixes must be tested up to the third slash [/] - `scheme://my.trusted.domain.com/`, to prevent evasion. For example, if the third slash [/] is not validated and scheme://my.trusted.domain.com is trusted, the URL scheme://my.trusted.domain.com.evildomain.com would be valid under this filter, but the domain actually being browsed is evildomain.com, not domain.com.
        ▪ For fully dynamic open redirection, use an intermediate disclaimer page to provide users with a clear warning that they are leaving the site.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Open Redirection in JavaScript Relies on User Input to Determine Destination

var location_href = window.location.href;
var url = new URL(location_href);
var loc = url.searchParams.get("location"); // If the URL contains the parameter "location=https://www.example.com", the page will redirect to that domain window.location = loc;

Convert Relative Location to Absolute Location Under Trusted Domain

var location_href = window.location.href;
var url = new URL(location_href);
var loc = url.searchParams.get("location");
window.location = "https://www.example.com/" + loc; // Assume example.com is a trusted domain
```

Whitelist Trusted Domains - Bad Whitelist

var location_href = window.location.href;
var url = new URL(location_href);
var loc = url.searchParams.get("location");
if (loc.startsWith("https://trusted1.example.com") ||
loc.startsWith("https://trusted2.example.com")) { window.location = loc;      /*  If an attacker creates a malicious website, such as by purchasing the domain evil.com and creating the subdomain

https://trusted1.example.com.evil.com, they will be able to bypass this whitelist */

}

Whitelist Trusted Domains

var location_href = window.location.href;
var url = new URL(location_href);
var loc = url.searchParams.get("location");
if (loc.startsWith("https://trusted1.example.com/") ||
loc.startsWith("https://trusted2.example.com/")) { window.location = loc; // Assume trusted1.example.com and trusted2.example.com are trusted domains; top level domain cannot be manipulate to bypass this check

Client Overly Permissive Message Posting

Risk

What might happen

If the application does not restrict communication via Web Messaging to a specific domain, the browser will dispatch the application message to any target web page, regardless of the actual location of the target web page. Thus it is possible that the message will be delivered to the wrong page from an untrusted domain. This could leak sensitive application data or user information, allowing a malicious third party to intercept this information.

Cause

How does it happen

The HTML5 Web Messaging API allows the message to be posted with a `targetOrigin` parameter. If the value of this URI does not match the current location of the target window's document, the browser will not allow the message to be delivered. Marking the `targetOrigin` parameter with the literal string `"*"` will indicate no preference, and the browser will send the message regardless of the target's location. This can disclose the data to any malicious site that changes the location of the window, even without the user's knowledge.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

- Always provide a specific `targetOrigin` to the `.postMessage` function, not `"*"`.
- The `targetOrigin` should be hardcoded, or at least white-listed.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Unspecified Target Origin

```javascript var data = '{"username": "bob", "password": "secret"}';
var popup = window.open(strUrl, "Popup_Window");

popup.postMessage(data, "*");

function receiveMessage(event)

  alert(event.data);
}
window.addEventListener("message", receiveMessage, false);
```

Always Specify an Exact Target Origin

```javascript var data = '{"username": "bob", "password": "secret"}';
var popup = window.open(strUrl, "Popup_Window");

popup.postMessage(data, strUrl);

```

```
  if (event.origin !== strUrl)
    return;

  alert(event.data);
}
window.addEventListener("message", receiveMessage, false);
```

Client Hardcoded Domain

Risk

What might happen

An externally imported Javascript file may leave users vulnerable to attack - if the Javascript's host is compromised, if communications with the host are intercepted or if the host itself is not trustworthy, then the contents of the Javascript file may change to have malicious code, which could result in a Cross-Site Scripting (XSS) attack.

Cause

How does it happen

Javascript files can be imported dynamically from remote hosts when they are embedded into HTML. However, this reliance on a remote host for these scripts may diminish security, as web-application's users are only ever as secure as the remote host serving these Javascript files.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

- Where possible, host all script files locally, rather than remotely. Ensure that locally hosted 3rd party script files are constantly updated and maintained.
- When relying on a 3rd party to host files, always make sure the 3rd party is reputable, and use the `integrity` script tag attribute. This attribute ensures the browser verifies the integrity of a file against a signature, to check whether it was tampered with or is different than expected, and automatically rejects it if the integrity check fails.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Remote Importation of A Script File

<script src="https://example.com/scripts/jquery.js" />
```

Local Importation of A Script File

<script src="/scripts/jquery.js" />
```

Using The integrity Attribute to Validate File Integrity

<script src="https://example.com/scripts/jquery.js"
    integrity="sha512-<signature-value>" crossorigin="anonymous" />
```

Client Use Of Iframe Without Sandbox

Risk

What might happen

Embedding an iframe whose contents are from a remote source without proper sandboxing may allow the iframe's contents to run malicious scripts resulting in Cross-Site Scripting (XSS), redirecting the embedding page to a malicious website and more.

Cause

How does it happen

Embedding an iframe from an untrusted and remote source is often a liability, making the embedding page's security hinge on an external, potentially untrustworthy resource. This is particularly prevalent when iframes are used to display advertisements from a third-party provider. If that resource becomes compromised to serve malicious content, this may adversely affect the security of the embedding page along with it; to that end - a iframe sandboxing feature was defined to revoke and restrict many of the iframe's capabilities to limit the risk of having external embedded content.

Note that simply adding the sandbox attribute to an iframe element will enable the sandbox; however, it is possible to add flags that bypass the sandbox's defenses (such as allow-scripts). These flags can be abused to the point where an iframe sandbox with specific configurations is less secure than an iframe without a sandbox at all (such as with the allow-same-origin directive).

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

- Review the need to include remote content in the web-page; remove such functionality where possible to decrease attack surface
- Where iframes are used to display remote content - always sandbox them to their required functionality only
- Avoid allowing scripts from remote untrusted websites

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
HTML iframe Without a Sandbox

<iframe src="https://untrusted.example.com/content.html"></iframe>
```

HTML sandboxed iframe

<iframe src="https://untrusted.example.com/content.html" sandbox ></iframe>
```

Client Password In Comment

Risk

What might happen

It is often possible to retrieve and view the application source code. For web applications, it is even simpler to "View Source" in the user's browser. Thus, a malicious user can steal these passwords, and use them to impersonate whoever they belong to. It is not known if these are valid, current passwords, nor if they are user passwords or for backend systems, like a database.

Cause

How does it happen

A well-developed application will have it's source code well commented. Often, programmers will leave deployment information in comments, or retain debugging data that was used during development. These comments often contain secret data, such as passwords. These password comments are stored in the source code in perpetuity, and are not protected.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

Do not store secrets, such as passwords, in source code comments.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Old Code Retained In Comment With Password

```javascript function login() {
    // send credentials to server instead of reading from database // constring = "Initial Catalog=mytest;User Id=sa;Pwd=mypass;";
    var creds = "username=" + txtUsername.text + "&password=" + txtPassword.text;
    var resp = sendToServer("/login", creds);
    return (resp == "success");
}
```

Passwords Cleaned from Comments

```javascript function login() {
    // send credentials to server instead of reading from database
    var creds = "username=" + txtUsername.text + "&password=" + txtPassword.text;
    var resp = sendToServer("/login", creds);
    return (resp == "success");
}
```

Potential Clickjacking on Legacy Browsers

Risk

What might happen

Clickjacking attacks allow an attacker to "hijack" a user's mouse clicks on a webpage, by invisibly framing the application, and superimposing it in front of a bogus site. When the user is convinced to click on the bogus website, e.g. on a link or a button, the user's mouse is actually clicking on the target webpage, despite being invisible.

This could allow the attacker to craft an overlay that, when clicked, would lead the user to perform undesirable actions in the vulnerable application, e.g. enabling the user's webcam, deleting all the user's records, changing the user's settings, or causing clickfraud.

Cause

How does it happen

The root cause of vulnerability to a clickjacking attack, is that the application's web pages can be loaded into a frame of another website. The application does not implement a proper frame-busting script, that would prevent the page from being loaded into another frame. Note that there are many types of simplistic redirection scripts that still leave the application vulnerable to clickjacking techniques, and should not be used.

When dealing with modern browsers, applications mitigate this vulnerability by issuing appropriate Content-Security-Policy or X-Frame-Options headers to indicate to the browser to disallow framing. However, many legacy browsers do not support this feature, and require a more manual approach by implementing a mitigation in Javascript. To ensure legacy support, a framebusting script is required.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

Generic Guidance:

- Define and implement a a Content Security Policy (CSP) on the server side, including a frame-ancestors directive. Enforce the CSP on all relevant webpages.
- If certain webpages are required to be loaded into a frame, define a specific, whitelisted target URL.
- Alternatively, return a "X-Frame-Options" header on all HTTP responses. If it is necessary to allow a particular webpage to be loaded into a frame, define a specific, whitelisted target URL.
- For legacy support, implement framebusting code using Javascript and CSS to ensure that, if a page is framed, it is never displayed, and attempt to navigate into the frame to prevent attack. Even if navigation fails, the page is not displayed and is therefore not interactive, mitigating potential clickjacking attacks.

Specific Recommendations:

- Implement a proper framebuster script on the client, that is not vulnerable to frame-buster-busting attacks.
  - Code should first disable the UI, such that even if frame-busting is successfully evaded, the UI cannot be clicked. This can be done by setting the CSS value of the "display" attribute to "none" on either the "body" or "html" tags. This is done because, if a frame attempts to redirect and become the parent, the malicious parent can still prevent redirection via various techniques.
  - Code should then determine whether no framing occurs by comparing self === top; if the result is true, can the UI be enabled. If it is false, attempt to navigate away from the framing page by setting the top.location attribute to self.location.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Clickjackable Webpage

```
<html>
    <body>

     <button onclick="clicked();">
            Click here if you love ducks
        </button>
    </body>

</html>
```

Bustable Framebuster

```
<html>
    <head>

     <script>
            if ( window.self.location != window.top.location ) { window.top.location = window.self.location;
            }
        </script> </head>

    <body>

     <button onclick="clicked();">
            Click here if you love ducks
        </button>
    </body>

</html>
```

Proper Framebusterbusterbusting

```
<html>
    <head>

     <style> html {display : none; } </style> <script>
            if ( self === top ) { document.documentElement.style.display = 'block';
            }
            else {
                    top.location = self.location;
            }
        </script> </head>

    <body>

     <button onclick="clicked();">
            Click here if you love ducks
        </button>
    </body>

</html>

Unsafe Use Of Target blank

Risk

What might happen

An unsuspecting user might click a vulnerable legitimate-looking link, prepared by an attacker, that leads to a malicious page. The new page that opens can redirect the original page to another malicious page and abuse the trust of the user to create a very convincing phishing attack.

Cause

How does it happen

When opening a new page using an HTML element with the "target" attribute (with any value), or with window.open() within JavaScript, the new page has some access to the original page through the window.opener object. This may allow redirection to a malicious phishing page.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

For HTML:

- Do not set the "target" attribute (with any value) for links created by users unless required.
- If required, when using the "target" attribute, also set the "rel" attribute as "noopener noreferrer":
  - "noopener" for Chrome and Opera
  - "noreferrer" for Firefox and old browsers
  - No similar solution for Safari

For JavaScript:

- When invoking an untrusted new window using "var newWindow = window.open()", set "newWindow.opener=null" before setting "newWindow.location" to a potentially untrusted site, such that when the new site is open in the new window, it has no access to its original "opener" attribute

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Unsafe Use of Window.Open()

```javascript function newWindowOpener(untrustedURL) {
    var newWindow=window.open();
    newWindow.location=untrustedURL;
}
```

Safe Use of Window.Open()

```javascript function newWindowOpenerSafe(untrustedURL) {
    var newWindow=window.open();
    newWindow.opener=null;
    newWindow.location=untrustedURL;
}
```

Information Exposure Through an Error Message

Risk

What might happen

Exposed details about the application's environment, users, or associated data (for example, stack trace) could enable an attacker to find another flaw and help the attacker to mount an attack. This may also leak sensitive data, e.g. passwords or database fields.

Cause

How does it happen

The application handles exceptions in an insecure manner, including raw details directly in the error message. This could occur in various ways: by not handling the exception; printing it directly to the output or file; explicitly returning the exception object; or by configuration. These exception details may include sensitive information that could leak to the users due to the occurrence of the runtime error.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

- Do not expose exception data directly to the output or users, instead return an informative, generic error message. Log the exception details to a dedicated log mechanism.
- Any method that could throw an exception should be wrapped in an exception handling block that:
  - Explicitly handles expected exceptions.
  - Includes a default solution to explicitly handle unexpected exceptions.
- Configure a global handler to prevent unhandled errors from leaving the application.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Throwing Error Without Handling it

```javascript app.get('/create-db', (req, res) => { db = new sqlite.Database('mydb.db', (err) => {
        if (err) throw err
})
```

Writing the Error to Log and Sending a Generic Message

```javascript
app.get('/create-db', (req, res) => { db = new sqlite.Database('mydb.db', (err) => {
        if (err) { console.log(err)
            res.send('An error occurred!')
        }
    })
})
```

Log Forging

Risk

What might happen

An attacker could engineer audit logs of security-sensitive actions and lay a false audit trail, potentially implicating an innocent user or hiding an incident.

Cause

How does it happen

The application writes audit logs upon security-sensitive actions. Since the audit log includes user input that is neither checked for data type validity nor subsequently sanitized, the input could contain false information made to look like legitimate audit log data,

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

1. Validate all input, regardless of source. Validation should be based on a whitelist: accept only data fitting a specified structure, rather than reject bad patterns. Check for:
   - Data type
   - Size
   - Range
   - Format
   - Expected values
2. Validation is not a replacement for encoding. Fully encode all dynamic data, regardless of source, before embedding it in logs.
3. Use a secure logging mechanism.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Passing Unsanitized Values to HAPI server.log()

```javascript var id = request.query["id"];
try { var val = tryGetById(id); // Assume this throws an exception if "id" is not found // Handle val
catch(err) { server.log(['error','id'],id); // Log unsanitized values, which could also not be sanitized downstream, and could contain CRLF
```

Passing Sanitized Values to HAPI server.log()

```javascript var id = request.query["id"];
try {
    var val = tryGetById(id); // Assume this throws an exception if "id" is not found // Handle val
catch(err) {
    server.log(['error','id'],encodeURI(id)); // encodeURI() is a sufficient sanitizer for CRLF, as it URL-encodes the line break characters
}
```

```
    }
```

Missing CSP Header

Risk

What might happen

The Content-Security-Policy header enforces that the source of content, such as the origin of a script, embedded (child) frame, embedding (parent) frame or image, are trusted and allowed by the current web-page; if, within the web-page, a content's source does not adhere to a strict Content Security Policy, it is promptly rejected by the browser. Failure to define a policy may leave the application's users exposed to Cross-Site Scripting (XSS) attacks, Clickjacking attacks, content forgery and more.

Cause

How does it happen

The Content-Security-Policy header is used by modern browsers as an indicator for trusted sources of content, including media, images, scripts, frames and more. If these policies are not explicitly defined, default browser behavior would allow untrusted content.
The application creates web responses, but does not properly set a Content-Security-Policy header.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

Explicitly set the Content-Security-Policy headers for all applicable policy types (frame, script, form, script, media, img etc.) according to business requirements and deployment layout of external file hosting services. Specifically, do not use a wildcard, '*', to specify these policies, as this would allow content from any external resource.
The Content-Security-Policy can be explicitly defined within web-application code, as a header managed by web-server configurations, or within `<meta>` tags in the HTML `<head>` section.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Setting The CSP Header Explicitly

```javascript app.use(function(req, res, next) { res.setHeader("Content-Security-Policy", "script-src 'self'");
    return next();
});
```

Risk

An attacker could use social engineering to get a victim to click a link to the application, so that the user will be immediately redirected to another site of the attacker's choice. An attacker can then craft a destination website to fool the victim; for example - they may craft a phishing website with an identical looking UI as the previous website's login page, and with a similar looking URL, convincing the user to submit their access credentials in the attacker's website. Another example would be a phishing website with an identical UI as that of a popular payment service, convincing the user to submit their payment information.

Cause

How does it happen

The application redirects the user's browser to a URL provided by a tainted input, without first ensuring that URL leads to a trusted destination, and without warning users that they are being redirected outside of the current site. An attacker could use social engineering to get a victim to click a link to the application with a parameter defining another site to which the application will redirect the user's browser. Since the user may not be aware of the redirection, they may be under the misconception that the website they are currently browsing can be trusted.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

1. Ideally, do not allow arbitrary URLs for redirection. Instead, create a mapping from user-provided parameter values to legitimate URLs.
2. If it is necessary to allow arbitrary URLs:
   - For URLs inside the application site, first filter and encode the user-provided parameter, and then either:
     - Create a white-list of allowed URLs inside the application
     - Use variables as a relative URL as an absolute one, by prefixing it with the application site domain - this will ensure all redirection will occur inside the domain
   - For URLs outside the application (if necessary), either:
     - White-list redirection to allowed external domains by first filtering URLs with trusted prefixes. Prefixes must be tested up to the third slash [/] - `scheme://my.trusted.domain.com/`, to prevent evasion. For example, if the third slash [/] is not validated and scheme://my.trusted.domain.com is trusted, the URL scheme://my.trusted.domain.com.evildomain.com would be valid under this filter, but the domain actually being browsed is evildomain.com, not domain.com.
     - For fully dynamic open redirection, use an intermediate disclaimer page to provide users with a clear warning that they are leaving the site.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Open Redirection in Node HTTP Module

```javascript var http = require('http') var url = require("url");
// ... //
var params = url.parse(request.url, true).query;
var redirect_url = params.redirect;
response.writeHead(302, {'Location': redirect_url});

response.end();
```

Open Redirection in Express

app.get('/redirectDispatcher', function(req, res)  {
    var url = req.query.redirectUrl
    res.redirect(url);
});
```

Restricted Redirection to Whitelist of Trusted Domains

app.get('/redirectDispatcher', function(req, res)  {
    var url = req.query.redirectUrl
    if (url.startsWith("https://www.trusteddomain.com/")) { // Whitelisting trusted domains, assuming trusteddomain.com is indeed trusted
        res.redirect(url);
    } else {
        res.redirect("/");
    }
});
```

Unprotected Cookie

Risk

What might happen

Cookies that contain the user's session identifier, and other sensitive application cookies, are typically accessible by client-side scripts, such as JavaScript. Unless the web application explicitly prevents this using the "httpOnly" cookie flag, these cookies could be read and accessed by malicious client scripts, such as Cross-Site Scripting (XSS). This flag would mitigate the damage done in case XSS vulnerabilities are discovered, according to Defense in Depth.

Likewise, sensitive cookies could be exposed by being sent over unprotected HTTP protocol, allowing attackers to sniff the users' requests and impersonate them to the application.

Cause

How does it happen

The web application framework, by default, does not set the "httpOnly" flag for the application's sessionid cookie and other sensitive application cookies. Likewise, the application does not explicitly use the "httpOnly" cookie flag, thus allowing client scripts to access the cookies by default.

Similarly, cookies that lack the "secure" flag will be automatically sent by the browser to the web server, regardless of the safety of the underlying protocol, such as unprotected HTTP. Cookies that are flagged with the "secure" attribute will only be sent over a secure HTTPS connection.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

 - Always set the "httpOnly" flag for any sensitive server-side cookie. - It is highly recommended to implement HTTP Strict Transport Security (HSTS) in order to ensure that the cookie will be sent over a secured channel. - Explicitly set the "httpOnly" flag for each cookie set by the application. - Configure and set all sensitive cookies to be created with the "secure" attribute.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Setting Cookie with Express

```javascript var express = require('express');
var app = express();

app.use(express.cookieParser());

app.get('/', function(req, res) {
    res.cookie('DepartmentID', getUserDept());
    res.send(getUserPage());

app.listen(SERVER_PORT);

Using Express for Secure Cookies

```javascript var express = require('express');
var app = express();

app.use(express.cookieParser());
```

app.get('/', function(req, res) {
    res.cookie('DepartmentID', getUserDept(), {maxAge: 900000,
             path: APP_ROOT, secure: true,
             httpOnly: true });

    res.send(getUserPage());

app.listen(SERVER_PORT);
```

Unrestricted File Upload

Risk

What might happen

Allowing users to save files of unrestricted size may allow attackers to fill file storage with junk, or conduct long writing operations which would strain systems conducting the saving operation. Exhausting this storage space or constraining it to the point where it is unavailable will result in denial of service.

Cause

How does it happen

Application code does not validate file size before saving files uploaded by users to storage, potentially allowing upload of files of any size.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

Constrain intended file size in code to prevent attackers from uploading files of arbitrary sizes by performing size checks. Do not rely on client-side size checks or any size parameters provided by users; evaluate the size of the file on the server, instead.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript
Using Loopback's Builtin Features to Limit Upload File Size

```javascript server.bind(RestBindings.REQUEST_BODY_PARSER_OPTIONS).to({ limit: '4MB',
```

Uploading File Without Size Validation

```javascript app.post('/upload-avatar', async (req, res) => {
    let avatar = req.files.avatar;

    res.send({
        message: 'File is uploaded'
});
```

Uploading File With Size Validation

```javascript
app.post('/upload-avatar', async (req, res) => {
    const maximumImageSize = 1 * 1024;
    const isValidImageSize = (size) => size < maximumImageSize;
```

        let avatar = req.files.avatar;
        const imageSize = req.files.avatar.size;
        if (!isValidImageSize(imageSize)) { res.send({ status: false, message: 'Image is too big'
        }

        avatar.mv('./uploads/' + path.basename(avatar.name));

        //send response
        res.send({ status: true,
});
```

React Deprecated

Risk

What might happen

Referencing deprecated modules can cause an application to be exposed to known vulnerabilities, that have been publicly reported and already fixed. A common attack technique is to scan applications for these known vulnerabilities, and then exploit the application through these deprecated versions. However, even if deprecated code is used in a way that is completely secure, its very use and inclusion in the code base would encourage developers to re-use the deprecated element in the future, potentially leaving the application vulnerable to attack, which is why deprecated code should be eliminated from the code-base as a matter of practice.

Note that the actual risk involved depends on the specifics of any known vulnerabilities in older versions. Use of a deprecated API on client code may leave users vulnerable to browser-based attacks; this is exacerbated by the fact client-side code is available to any attacker with client access, who may be able to trivially detect use of this deprecated API.

Cause

How does it happen

The application references code elements that have been declared as deprecated. This could include classes, functions, methods, properties, modules, or obsolete library versions that are either out of date by version, or have been entirely deprecated. It is likely that the code that references the obsolete element was developed before it was declared as obsolete, and in the meantime the referenced code was updated.

General Recommendations

How to avoid it

- Always prefer to use the most updated versions of libraries, packages, and other dependancies.
- Do not use or reference any class, method, function, property, or other element that has been declared deprecated.

Source Code Examples

JavaScript

ReactJS - Using a Deprecated Method to Interact with DOM

// Using findDOMNode to access a component is highly discouraged, because it breaks React component abstraction by treating it like a normal Javascript DOM object; this may result in
ReactDOM.findDOMNode(component);
```

Use of Multiple Resources with Duplicate Identifier

Weakness ID: 694 (Weakness Base)   Status: Incomplete

Description

Description Summary

The product uses multiple resources that can have the same identifier, in a context in which unique identifiers are required. This could lead to operations on the wrong resource, or inconsistent operations.

Potential Mitigations

Use unique identifiers.

Other Notes

This weakness is probably closely associated with other issues related to doubling, such as CWE-675 (Duplicate Operations on Resource). It's usually a case of an API contract violation (CWE-227).

Critical Variable Declared Public

Weakness ID: 766 (Weakness Variant)   Status: Incomplete

Description

Description Summary

The software declares a critical variable or field to be public when intended security policy requires it to be private.

Time of Introduction

- Architecture and Design
- Implementation

Applicable Platforms

Languages

C++

C#

Java

Common Consequences

Scope	Effect
Integrity Confidentiality	Making a critical variable public allows anyone with access to the object in which the variable is contained to alter or read the value.

Likelihood of Exploit

Low to Medium

Demonstrative Examples

Example 1

The following example declares a critical variable public, making it accessible to anyone with access to the object in which it is contained.

(Bad Code)
Example Language: C++

```
```

Instead, the critical data should be declared private.

(Good Code)

```
```

Even though this example declares the password to be private, there are other possible issues with this implementation, such as the possibility of recovering the password from process memory (CWE-257).

Example 2

The following example shows a basic user account class that includes member variables for the username and password as well as a public constructor for the class and a public method to authorize access to the user account.

(Bad Code)
Example Language: C++

```
#define MAX_PASSWORD_LENGTH 15
#define MAX_USERNAME_LENGTH 15

class UserAccount
public:
UserAccount(char *username, char *password)
```

```
{
if ((strlen(username) > MAX_USERNAME_LENGTH) ||
(strlen(password) > MAX_PASSWORD_LENGTH)) {
ExitError("Invalid username or password");
}
strcpy(this->username, username);
strcpy(this->password, password);
}

int authorizeAccess(char *username, char *password)
{
if ((strlen(username) > MAX_USERNAME_LENGTH) ||
(strlen(password) > MAX_PASSWORD_LENGTH)) {
ExitError("Invalid username or password");
// if the username and password in the input parameters are equal to // the username and password of this account class then authorize access if (strcmp(this->username, username) || strcmp(this->password, password))
return 0;
// otherwise do not authorize access else
}

char username[MAX_USERNAME_LENGTH+1];
char password[MAX_PASSWORD_LENGTH+1];

However, the member variables username and password are declared public and therefore will allow access and changes to the member variables to anyone with access to the object. These member variables should be declared private as shown below to prevent unauthorized access and changes.

(Good Code)
Example Language: C++

```
class UserAccount
public:
...

private:
char username[MAX_USERNAME_LENGTH+1];
char password[MAX_PASSWORD_LENGTH+1];
```

Potential Mitigations

Phase: Implementation

Data should be private, static, and final whenever possible. This will assure that your code is protected by instantiating early, preventing access, and preventing tampering.

Expression is Always True

Weakness ID: 571 (Weakness Variant)   Status: Draft

Description

Description Summary

The software contains an expression that will always evaluate to true.

Time of Introduction

-     Implementation

Applicable Platforms

Languages

All

Example 1

In the following Java example the updateInventory() method used within an e-business product ordering/inventory application will check if the input product number is in the store or in the warehouse. If the product is found, the method will update the store or warehouse database as well as the aggregate product database. If the product is not found, the method intends to do some special processing without updating any database.

(Bad Code)

Example Language: Java

public void updateInventory(String productNumber) { boolean isProductAvailable = false;
boolean isDelayed = false;

if (productInStore(productNumber)) {
isProductAvailable = true;
updateInStoreDatabase(productNumber);
}
else if (productInWarehouse(productNumber)) {
isProductAvailable = true;
updateInWarehouseDatabase(productNumber);
}
else {
isProductAvailable = true;
}

if ( isProductAvailable ) {
updateProductDatabase(productNumber);
}
else if ( isDelayed ) { /* Warn customer about delay before order processing */
}
```

However, the method never sets the isDelayed variable and instead will always update the isProductAvailable variable to true. The result is that the predicate testing the isProductAvailable boolean will always evaluate to true and therefore always update the product database. Further, since the isDelayed variable is initialized to false and never changed, the expression always evaluates to false and the customer will never be warned of a delay on their product.

Weakness ID: 478 (Weakness Variant)   Status: Draft

Description

Description Summary

The code does not have a default case in a switch statement, which might lead to complex logical errors and resultant weaknesses.

Time of Introduction

- Implementation

Applicable Platforms

C

C++

Java

.NET

Common Consequences

Scope	Effect
Other	Depending on the logical circumstances involved, any consequences may result: e.g., issues of confidentiality, authentication, authorization, availability, integrity, accountability, or non-repudiation.

Example 1

The following fails to properly check the return code in the case where the security_check function returns a -1 value when an error occurs. If an attacker can supply data that will invoke an error, the attacker can bypass the security check:

(Bad Code)

#define FAILED 0
#define PASSED 1
int result;

switch (result) {
case FAILED:
printf("Security check failed!\n");
exit(-1);
case PASSED:
printf("Security check passed.\n");
break;
}
// program execution continues...
```

Instead a default label should be used for unaccounted conditions:

(Good Code)

#define FAILED 0
#define PASSED 1
int result;

result = security_check(data);
switch (result) {
case FAILED:

```
printf("Security check failed!\n");
exit(-1);
case PASSED:
printf("Security check passed.\n");
break;
default:
printf("Unknown error (%d), exiting...\n",result);
exit(-1);
```

This label is used because the assumption cannot be made that all possible cases are accounted for. A good practice is to reserve the default case for error handling.

Potential Mitigations

Phase: Implementation

Ensure that there are no unaccounted for cases, when adjusting flow or values based on the value of a given variable. In switch statements, this can be accomplished through the use of the default label.

Other Notes

This flaw represents a common problem in software development, in which not all possible values for a variable are considered or handled by a given process. Because of this, further decisions are made based on poor information, and cascading failure results. This cascading failure may result in any number of security issues, and constitutes a significant failure in the system. In the case of switch style statements, the very simple act of creating a default case can mitigate this situation, if done correctly. Often however, the default cause is used simply to represent an assumed option, as opposed to working as a sanity check. This is poor practice and in some cases is as bad as omitting a default case entirely.

Description

Description Summary

The program omits a break statement within a switch or similar construct, causing code associated with multiple conditions to execute. This can cause problems when the programmer only intended to execute code associated with one condition.

Extended Description

This can lead to critical code executing in situations where it should not.

Time of Introduction

Applicable Platforms

Languages

C++

Java

.NET

PHP

Javascript

Likelihood of Exploit

Detection Methods
White Box

Omission of a break statement might be intentional, in order to support fallthrough. Automated detection methods might therefore be erroneous. Semantic understanding of expected program behavior is required to interpret whether the code is correct.
Black Box

Since this weakness is associated with a code construct, it would be indistinguishable from other errors that produce the same behavior.

Demonstrative Examples

Example 1

(Bad Code)

{
int month = 8;
switch (month) {
```

case 1: print("January"); case 2: print("February");
case 3: print("March");
case 4: print("April");
case 5: print("May");
case 6: print("June");
case 7: print("July");
case 8: print("August");
case 9: print("September");
case 10: print("October");
case 11: print("November");
case 12: print("December");
}
println(" is a great month");
```

Example Languages: C and C++

{
int month = 8;
switch (month) {

case 1: printf("January"); case 2: printf("February");
case 3: printf("March");
case 4: printf("April");
case 5: printff("May");
case 6: printf("June"); case 7: printf("July");
case 8: printf("August");
case 9: printf("September");
case 10: printf("October");
case 11: printf("November");
case 12: printf("December");
}
printf(" is a great month");

Now one might think that if they just tested case 12, it will display that the respective month "is a great month." However, if one tested November, one notice that it would display "November December is a great month."

Potential Mitigations

Phase: Implementation

Omitting a break statement so that one may fall through is often indistinguishable from an error, and therefore should be avoided. If you need to use fall-through capabilities, make sure that you have clearly documented this within the switch statement, and ensure that you have examined all the logical possibilities.
Phase: Implementation
